Jersey Shore Summer Must-Dos

NO SUMMER IS COMPLETE
WITHOUT THESE FAMILY-FRIENDLY ACTIVITIES

BOARDWALK ROLLER COASTER — Whether it's Point Pleasant Beach or Seaside Heights boardwalk, summer visitors (and year-round residents) must catch a ride on a coaster overlooking the ocean. Both boardwalks offer rides that suit all levels of adventure, or lack thereof.

SHOP DOWNTOWN — Pick your favorite Main Street thoroughfare: Manasquan's Main Street, Point Pleasant Beach's Arnold Avenue, Spring Lake's Third Avenue, Freehold's East Main Street, Toms River's Main Street, Red Bank's Broad Street, Belmar's Main Street. You'll find plenty of local shops to fill your beach bag, closet hangers and much more.

FIND ADVENTURE ON THE WATER — Be sure not to just passively enjoy the beauty of the Atlantic Ocean and area lakes and rivers. There are so many options to choose from: hop aboard a pleasure cruise or fishing cruise at one of the area marinas; float on local rivers in a kayak or a paddleboard; go whale watching; take flight on a parasail; you can even float on a tiki bar.

BITE INTO A SLICE OF JERSEY SHORE PIZZA — The thin crust of a local slice of pie is unmatched and a must-do when visiting the Jersey Shore. Locals can share their favorite spot within a moment of asking, but we haven't met a pie in the area that we didn't love for one reason or another. Perhaps a pizza tour of the Shore is in order for your summer vacation?

CATCH A FIREWORKS SHOW — Watching the sky light up at the end of a sunny beach day is the perfect way to close out your fun. Weekly you can catch beautiful pyrotechnics in Seaside Heights every Wednesday and Point Pleasant Beach every Thursday. Offshore, you can see post-game fireworks shows at select Lakewood BlueClaws games including July 12, 13, 26 and Aug. 15, 16, 30 and 31.

Indoor fun for the whole family, even on rainy days

MONSTER MINI GOLF, EATONTOWN

WHAT CAN FAMILIES DO WHEN IT RAINS ON YOUR BEACH DAY?

ISABELLE FARINA
N&D MAGAZINE

“But MOOOOMMM! It’s raining! What are we going to dooooooo?”

Those dreaded words on what should be a sunny Shore day can be a challenge to address. Unless of course, you read on in this article, where we have done the hard work for you.

The opportunities for fun in the Jersey Shore and surrounding areas are endless, even during those dreaded cruddy weather days. The following locations solve the unpredictability of weather when looking for a fun summer activity.

IPLAY AMERICA

iPlay America takes all the excitement of the Jersey Shore boardwalk and the streets of New York City and turns it into an indoor arena of fun. The amusement park has countless attractions including top golf, laser tag and the multi-sensory interactive XD Dark Ride. In addition to the unique attractions, iPlay America offers 11 amusement rides for all ages. There are also more than 250 arcade and boardwalk games. Social media and marketing manager Savannah Beyer said in an interview that this variety of activities makes iPlay entertaining for all ages.

“There’s a lot to do for any age range,” Beyer said. “So you can be a teen coming in for just laser tag and the arcade, you can be a 5-year-old coming in for ballocity and the rides, you could be a 10-year-old coming in for the go karts. There’s something for everybody versus some other places are more targeted with their demographics.”

Customers can buy the iRide band for $39.99, which includes unlimited access to amusement rides or the Premier Play Pass, which covers all rides, two hours of unlimited, non-redemption video games, one round of two-level laser tag, one XD Dark Ride Experience, unlimited ballocity and a $25 game card for $79.99. Customers can also pay as they go by purchasing credits.

JENKINSON'S AQUARIUM

JENKINSON'S BOARDWALK

300 Ocean Ave., Point Pleasant Beach

If you decide the Jersey Shore boardwalk is more for you, the Jenkinson's offers several activities that are available in all weather conditions. The boardwalk has four different arcades: Jenkinson's South Arcade, Jenkinson's Pavilion Arcade, Frank's Fun Center and South Beach Arcade. Each is filled with tons of skill cranes, classic video games, virtual reality video games, skee-ball, basketball, prizes and more. At each arcade, customers must use the respective card.

JENKINSON'S AQUARIUM

300 Ocean Ave., Point Pleasant Beach

The fun at Jenkinson's is not limited to its arcades. Adjacent to the boardwalk is an aquarium, which offers several experience options including self-guided tours, animal encounters, private behind-the-scenes tours and educational programs. Adults can buy tickets for $18, seniors for $13, children (3-11) for $12 and children 2 and under for free.

MONSTER MINI GOLF

749 Hope Road, Eatontown

Surrounded by neon-painted ghouls and goblins, Monster Mini Golf brings the fun of the classic summer activity of miniature golf inside. The course provides an epic adventure for children and families on rainy summer days. In addition to mini golf, kids can also enjoy the Monstrous Gaming Arcade and virtual reality activities. Little Monsters can get mini golf tickets for $13, big monsters for $14 and seniors and military for $11.

SIX FLAGS GREAT ADVENTURE

1 Six Flags Blvd., Jackson

Six Flags Great Adventure has more to offer than just its dare-devilish roller coasters, which yes, do close during severe weather. The park offers many activities that are fun in any kind of weather including shows, restaurants, shops, games and arcades, according to its website. Some shows offered are the Flash! Bang! Brass!, Saw Mill Duo and The Tone Travelers. There are numerous shops including M-PORIUM, full of sweet and colorful M&M's® and MARS candy treats, Safari Outpost, which sells animal-themed apparel and collectibles and the DC Superhero Store, which sells collectibles, toys, souvenirs, apparel and more. Daily tickets start at $39 each.

SKY ZONE

2355 Route 66, Ocean Township

1001 New Hampshire Ave., Suite A, Lakewood

Trampolines can become incredibly dangerous in the rain, but Sky Zone has solved this problem with its indoor trampoline park. The park is full of countless different activities including freestyle jump, Ninja Warrior Course, Air Court, Zip Line, Speed Zone, Silks, dodgeball, trapeze and swing, sky joust and more. Single-day and all-day passes are $29.99 and $38.99 respectively. Sky Zone also offers summer packs for frequent visitors.

SHORE LANES

701 Route 35 North, Neptune

Bowling is a great activity to get the whole family involved and get competitive spirits high. With shoe rental at $3.50, prices are typically $3.50 for children, adults for $4.50 and seniors for $3.

INSECTROPOLIS

1761 Route 9, Toms River

Arcade games or rides are not for everyone. Insectropolis, a bug museum for children, provides an indoor and interactive alternative for those rainy summer days. With its dozens of exhibits, at Insectropolis kids can see their favorite bugs up close or even get to hold them. Admission is $12 per visitor, while children 2 and under are free.

Digging for fossilized treasure

GUIDED FOSSIL HUNTS TAKE DINOSAUR ENTHUSIASTS
ON A TOUR THROUGH HISTORY

BY TOMMY WATTERS
N&D MAGAZINE

On a recent Saturday afternoon, a group of about 15 children and their parents gathered at the Poricy Brook Fossil Beds in Middletown, shovels and colanders in hand, and listened intently as paleontological expert Marc Rogoff prepared them for what they were about to do.

"You'll start to get a feel for it," Rogoff said, showing the correct motion for sifting through the ancient sediment of the nearby, fossil-rich creek bed. He pointed to the sign behind him that depicted the range of fossils that the crowd would likely encounter, which included everything from brachiopods to shark teeth to fossilized fecal matter. Rogoff is an education specialist with the New Jersey Department Environmental Protection Fish and Wildlife, Bureau of information and Education

The Monmouth Museum sponsors fossil hunts throughout the summer, bringing groups of people to shady creek beds throughout the area to pan for fossilized treasure in a unique experience that also enables participants to avoid the summer heat.

Erika Schaefer, executive director of Monmouth Museum, told Night & Day that the museum typically holds a fossil hunt once a month, with its most recent one at Poricy Brook held on June 15. The tour features an expert in the field of paleontology, the study of prehistoric life, as attendees meet at a designated location and start digging for fossils.

Monmouth County is an excellent location for Cretaceous-era fossils. This was the time at the end of the dinosaurs, 66 million years ago (mya). During this time, most, if not all of Monmouth County was under water, as sea levels were much higher than today. As the sea levels have now well receded a few miles to the east, a trove of fossilized treasures can be found throughout the area.

One of the biggest hotspots in the Monmouth County area is in Big Brook, between Marlboro and Holmdel. The previous fossil hunt took place at Ramanessin Brook in Marlboro, which is a part of the greater Big Brook area.

“The area that we live in is so rich with this history,” Schaefer said. “We all travel down and people bring their sifts and shovels. Sometimes you don’t even need a tool as things are so easily found here.”

In this area, one of the most common types of fossils are teeth, particular prehistoric shark teeth. Roughly eight different species of prehistoric crow and angel sharks have been identified in this area.

Also in the area are mosasaur teeth. Mosasaurs were a group of extinct marine reptiles related to snakes. If readers have seen the “Jurassic World” movies, this is the large swimming animal that jumps and eats the shark on the line.

While the movie version is significantly larger than the real ones, this does not mean these animals were pushovers. Mosasaurs ruled the Cretaceous seas and were the top predators of the ocean, surpassing even the sharks of that era.

These animals ranged in size, with some of the largest species growing up to 60 feet long and having a bite force of 13,000 to 16,000 pounds per square inch (psi) of bite force. For comparison, saltwater crocodiles are capable of achieving about 3,700 psi.

In fact, the first-ever American specimen of a mosasaur was found in Monmouth County back in 1818.

Another fossil paleontologists have found in this area are Hadrosaurus teeth. This dinosaur was one of the first dinosaurs to ever be identified, and it was found right here in New Jersey. This has led the animal to become New Jersey’s state dinosaur.

This dinosaur was a duck-bill, a herbivore from the Cretaceous period, and may have found itself on the menu of many predators back then, including T-rex.

Along with these, many shells of prehistoric invertebrates have also been found in the area.

Rogoff said he had great success digging for fossils in the area.

“If you are going to be digging for things from the past, learn about the present as well. Use the past to learn about the present,” said Rogoff.

Rogoff — and his son who was leading the dig with him and is currently studying paleontology at Rowan University — agreed that many of the fossilized creatures found in the Poricy Brook stream resemble what is in the ocean today.

In Marc’s time hunting for fossils, one of the most interesting fossils he has ever found was a hadrosaur tooth he found at Big Brook.

Fossil hunting can be for anyone, said Rogoff, “The only tool you’ll need is a colander...you use it as a sifter, like you are panning for gold.”

While hunters may not find teeth or bones right away, Rogoff said doing this at Big Brook, people often find something within 10 minutes, that is how plentiful fossils are in Monmouth County. At the most recent dig, attendees stumbled on an array of oyster, clam and brachiopod shells.

Brachiopod fossils are the remains of marine invertebrates that lived on or buried in the ocean floor and secreted two-part shells called valves. These range in size from incredibly tiny, only a few millimeters in length up to two and a half inches long.

Something else fossil hunters may find is coprolite, which is fossilized fecal matter. Most likely, people may locate fossilized fish poop in the streams of Big Brook.

The museum is planning another guided fossil hunt at Ramanessin Trail in the fossil beds on July 14 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For more information on events like these, visit the Monmouth Museum website at monmouthmuseum.org.

Taste Hawaii at Ohana Grill

ISABELLE FARINA
N&D MAGAZINE

Located on Grand Central Ave in Lavallette for 14 summers now, Ohana Grill is a classy casual restaurant that brings a taste of Hawaii to the Jersey Shore.

As someone who has always thought of fish as merely friends and definitely not food, I was apprehensive to try seafood for the very first time. However, Ohana Grill's friendly, familial atmosphere eased all my fears.

Traces of family are discreetly scattered all around the restaurant. The walls are a vibrant, coastal blue that was hand painted by owner James Costello and his grandfather-in-law, adorned with photographs also taken by his grandfather-in-law and a framed shirt that belongs to his father-in-law. Customers have probably been served by one of the many family members that have worked there.

Undoubtedly, the restaurant lives up to its name, which according to the website Collections of Waikiki involves: "creating loving relationships with more than just blood relatives. Embracing 'ohana' means developing a sense of familial care and devotion to all members of the human family."

"There's a lot in the 'ohana' you know ..." Costello said. "You know, it's always been a very family business, so that's important to us."

In addition to its commitment to family, Ohana Grill celebrates the unique cuisine of Hawaii. Costello shared a taste of four beautifully plated dishes.

The crispy rice cakes appetizer, featured a marinated spicy tuna served over a bed of crispy rice and topped with wasabi aioli and jalapenos. While spicy tuna crispy rice is a common dish, the wasabi sauce was unique because of its strong flavor without overwhelming spice.

Moving on to entrees, the day boat scallops risotto featured pan-seared scallops over crab, mushroom and spinach, which was cheesy and delicious.

The Mongolian beef bowl came with coconut rice and broccoli, and was topped with sesame seeds and scalions. The meat was coated in a generous amount of sauce with a kick. The coconut rice was sweet and soft, serving as a perfect pairing with the broccoli.

As a newfound fish lover, I am shocked to share that the blackened mahi-mahi was my personal favorite. The lime aioli drizzled around the plate along with the mango salsa elevated this fiery fish dish above the others. While the fish was the star of the meal, the garlic mashed potatoes should not be forgotten.

Costello's expertise in the kitchen has been acquired over years of experience. In fact, Costello first learned the restaurant business when he was a bartender, picking up chef's shifts when necessary. Once Ohana Grill was open, Costello enhanced his skills by learning from his fellow staff members.

"Every place you learn little bits and pieces," Costello said. "So when we bought the restaurant, I could cook but not to this level. Over the years, in 14 years, I've had 20 different chefs come through and every chef brings something else."

While the cooking came later, the idea for the establishment was born long ago. Costello and his wife, who frequently vacation in Hawaii, often mused about opening a Jersey-themed restaurant in Hawaii or a Hawaiian-themed restaurant in New Jersey. Soon after a visit to Hawaii in 2009, Costello's wife became pregnant and the previous owner was selling the restaurant's current building, finalizing the family's decision to turn their inside joke into a reality.

Once the state was decided, the Costellos knew opening a restaurant in Lavallette just made sense.

"Lavallette is a great town," Costello said. "I've always been in the seasonal business. The restaurant business isn't easy, and to do it seven days, year round is a grind, so we were like, 'Well, if we bought in Lavallette, we could be super busy in the summer and then the off season, you could just really open weekends if you wanted to.'"

Costello is content with the restaurant's seasonal, dinner-only arrangement and plans to continue to serve the community by adhering to his core values of "great service, great food in a great atmosphere."
